Hanover, July 15, N. S.

ON Tuesday last the 12th Instant, the King came hither from Herrenhausen at Seven of the Clock in the Evening to see the Opera House, which was extremely well lighted up with Torches and Wax-Candles, and where two little French Plays were acted by His Majesty's Comedians, the House being filled with Spectators of both Sexes. That Evening the Count d'Altenburg, and a great many other Foreigners of Distinction arrived here to see the great Review, which was made the next Morning in the following Manner. The whole Body of Troops, consisting of Twelve Battalions and Eighteen Squadrons, were drawn up in a Line, in a great Plain near this City, the King came thither between Seven and Eight of the Clock in the Morning, accompanied by the Prince of Holstein, who is Bishop of Lubeck and Eutin, and the Princes William and George of Hesse, and attended by the Principal Officers and Gentlemen of His Court on Horseback. The Field Marshal, Lieutenant-General Hardenberg, and the Brigadier Ponpietain received and saluted His Majesty at the Head of Ponpietain's Regiment of Dragoons, which was on the Right of the Line, Twelve Pieces of Cannon being fired as soon as His Majesty came in Sight of it. The Troops were drawn up in the following Order, three Squadrons of Ponpietain's and four Squadrons of Lowen's Dragoons, and two Squadrons of Launay's Horse composed the Right Wing; then two Battalions of Foot Guards, consisting of 1400 Men, Nine other Battalions of 700 Men each, and one of 500. The Left Wing consisted of Eight Squadrons, viz. Two of Hasberg and Two of Walter's Horse, and Four Squadrons of Brigadier Wendt's Dragoons. After His Majesty had reviewed the Line, and placed himself in the Center, a Signal being made by firing three Pieces of Cannon, the Dragoons and Horse of the Right Wing wheeled by Divisions, and being near the Center reduced, and march'd before the King, by Fours; the Foot march'd in half Divisions, and was followed by the Left Wing, marching in the same Manner as the Right had done, and then they took up the same Ground as before. Another Signal being made by Three Pieces of Cannon, the Troops of the whole Line loaded, and 20 Field Pieces being discharged, the Line made a running Fire from Right to Left. The Artillery repeated their Discharge three Times, the Horse Dragoons and Foot making a running Fire from Right to Left as before. Another Signal being made, Ponpietain's Dragoons wheel'd by Squadrons, and march'd in that Order by the King, as did all the Horse and Dragoons of that Wing; the whole Body of Foot form'd in Two (and march'd in) grand Divisions, followed by the Horse and Dragoons of the Left Wing in Squadrons. The whole lasted till Five a-Clock in the Afternoon, when His Majesty returned to Herrenhausen, very much satisfied with the fine Appearance the Troops had made; and at his Majesty's Departure from the Field, He was saluted by Twelve Pieces of Cannon. Yesterday about Nine a-Clock the King repaired to the same Plain where the Review had been the Day before, and where the Eleven Squadrons of Dragoons mentioned above, and the Squadron of Horse-Guards formed the Line, the Horse-Guards being on the Right; the Field-Marshal and Lieutenant-General Hardenberg received and saluted the King at the Head of those Guards. His Majesty having reviewed the whole Line, and rode through every Rank, placed himself in the Center. Upon the Signal's being given, the Dragoons march'd from the Right by Squadrons, and halted in that Order, when they came to the Center, and then rank'd  being call'd over Man by Man: They march'd up to their former Ground, and as soon as the Line was formed, and three Pieces of Cannon were fired, they went through all the Evolutions on Horseback; and afterwards six Squadrons being drawn up, so as to front the remaining six, they charged each other several Times, and march'd off by Squadrons and form'd a Line. Another Signal being given, the Dragoons dismounted, and having linked their Horses and formed into Battalions, they performed first the manual Exercise, and then fired in Platoons, in which Order they marched before the King, and then returned to their Horses. His Majesty left the Field about Four in the Afternoon, and was saluted as the Day before. Last Night arrived here the Count de Plettenberg, Minister from the Electors of Bavaria and Cologne, and this Morning he had his Audience of the King, by whom he was received very graciously. The young Prince of Holstein, Bishop of Lubeck and Eutin, having taken his Leave of His Majesty, set out this Morning for Hambourg.
